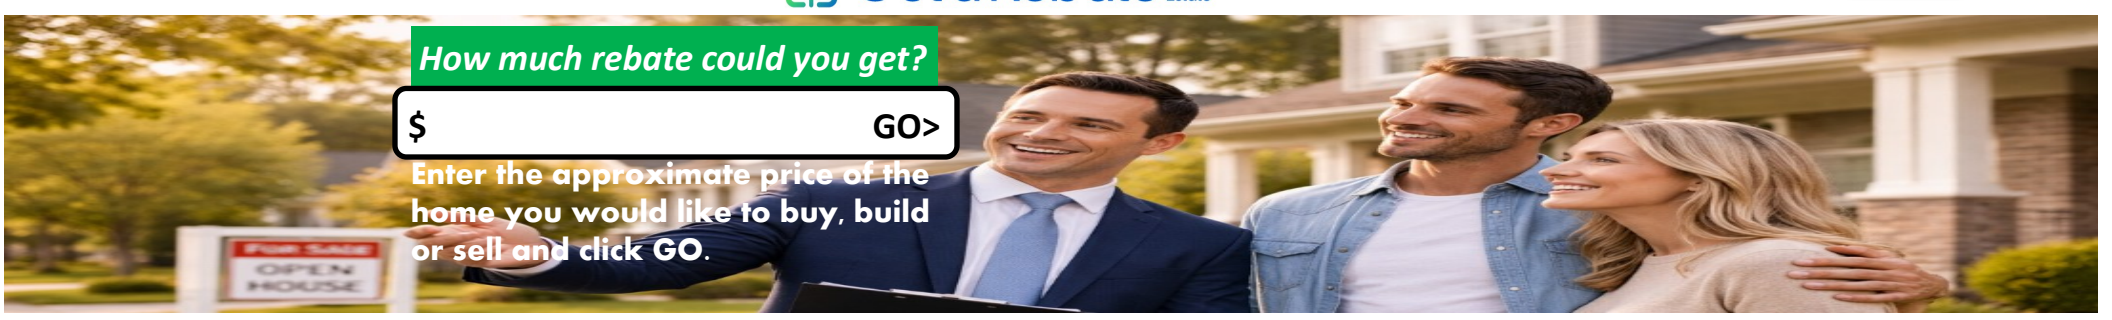
Get a Rebate Real Estate

FAQS Login



These 40 states allow real estate rebates.

How It Works (Simple & Transparent)

Step 1: Create a Free Account Sign up in minutes and search by zip code to find participating real estate professionals.

Step 2: Connect With local Agents or Loan Officers View profiles, compare options, and contact professionals directly—no obligation or referral fees.

Step 3: Receive Your Rebate at Closing When your transaction closes, your rebate is applied as a credit at closing or reflected in reduced commission savings.

What Is a Rebate and Why Do I Want One?

A real estate commission rebate is a portion of the commission that is credited back to the buyer or seller at closing, or reflected as a reduced commission on the listing side. In simple terms, it means you keep more of the money that would normally go to a real estate commission. Rebates can make buying or selling a home more affordable by reducing your overall transaction costs. In fact, the U.S. Department of Justice has supported the use of real estate rebates and consumer incentives as a way to increase competition and lower costs for consumers.
